SLEUTH ON SKATES: SESAME SEADE #1

by Clémentine Beauvais

illustrated by Sarah Horne

Sophie Margaret Catronia Seade – aka Sesame – has a penchant for roller-skating, sophisticated terminology, and sleuthing. What this sassy brainiac needs is a mystery to solve – and that’s just what she gets when Cambridge University student Jenna Jenkins goes missing!

With help from her friends, Sesame just might crack the case – as long as she can steer clear of pesky parents and avoid the perpetrators of a serious crime!

With delightful illustrations by Sarah Horne, the Sesame Seade Mystery series begins with the hilarious story of how an eleven-year-old girl with as many connections in her brain as there are stars in the universe becomes a true sleuth on skates.

Clémentine Beauvais was born in Paris, where she picked up children’s books and never put them down. As a doctoral student living in Cambridge, UK, she knows Sesame Seade’s haunts well.

Sarah Horne is the illustrator of many children’s books. She lives in London, England.
